Compliance, Risk & Resilience:
COMPLIANCE ASSESSMENT, REMEDIATION & VALIDATION

Complying with complex cybersecurity regulations and evolving security/privacy standards has become a consensus obligation that requires the buy-in of an organization’s compliance, security, legal, and internal audit departments.

Cybersecurity compliance is a board governance issue that creates director and officer liability risk. Regulators are imposing more prescriptive cybersecurity rules, and noncompliance now carries significant punitive downside. With data breaches now seemingly routine and inevitable, stakeholders, insurers, and regulators are convinced that not enough is being done to secure and protect digital assets.

Independent assessment, remediation, and assurance services from B. Riley Advisory Services can be part of a prudent approach to cybersecurity compliance in these times of elevated risk. We conduct current state compliance assessments and gap analysis, provide compliance implementation support, and develop compliance gap analysis, remediation roadmaps, and compliance audit readiness assessments.

We run meaningful use assessments of the functionality of electronic health records systems. Our team helps clients align information security controls and target frameworks with independent assessments, validation, and certification assurance. We regularly provide executive management and board-level presentations of our findings to ensure that our clients have a strategic perspective — not only on the expense of ongoing cybersecurity compliance, but also on the regulatory, financial, and reputational costs of noncompliance.

Trends in global compliance and enforcement include the replacement of target-based “point-in-time” regulations with program-based, continuous improvement and maturity regulations that require organizations to develop a culture of information security and a broader shared responsibility for cybersecurity compliance.

Chief Information Security Officers [CISOs] are now reporting outside the technical management function to the chief risk, operating, or compliance officer. Boards are beginning to recruit security-knowledgeable members who can help the CISO elevate the cybersecurity compliance “knowledge quotient” of the board. B. Riley understands how to help clients through this new world of information governance and security compliance.
SERVICES

We provide a complete portfolio of cybersecurity compliance services across multiple sectors, with a focus on regulated industries with enforced standards - defense, financial services, healthcare, and retail/e-commerce.

- General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) and Center for Internet Security (CIS)
- NIST 800, Control Objectives for Information and Related Technology (COBIT), CIS Critical Security Controls

We approach our work with clients from a rounded perspective of technical, regulatory/legal, and operational expertise. Engagements are always led by highly experienced, industry-certified experts who effectively work virtually during the pandemic and onsite afterward, managing interviews, audits, document reviews, inspections, and client interaction. We often provide our assessment findings through, or work directly for, clients’ outside counsel to protect the assertion of privilege.

REPRESENTATIVE ENGAGEMENTS

Company 23 NYCRR Part 500 Gap Analysis and Compliance Assessment for a Fortune 500 Insurer
We mapped results to ISO 27001 and the NIST Cybersecurity Framework and provided an element-level plan and staff assistance toward 23 NYCRR Part 500 compliance, within a multiyear InfoSec maturity roadmap.

HHS OCR Audit Readiness Assessment for the IT and Compliance Groups of a University Medical Center
We provided audit line-item findings around acceptable citing, evidence, and location (for both HIPAA Security and Privacy Rules) along with gap remediation and audit preparation.

DFARS and CMMC Readiness Assessments for a Global Trading Company
We conducted a rigorous assessment of the information security posture and capabilities of a large manufacturer newly entering the defense industry. We developed a gap analysis and a long-term compliance remediation roadmap.

THE B. RILEY DIFFERENCE

Our information security experts bring unique perspective and know-how from their years of hands-on cybersecurity experience — as entrepreneurs, in the corporate and defense environments, and as independent and Big Four consultants. We are industry-credentialed and have been CISOs, CIOs, engineers, ethical hackers, faculty, authors, and standards contributors. We work in defense, financial services, healthcare, law firms, media, insurance, utilities and energy, industrial control systems, e-commerce, and transportation. Clients value our ability to unpack complex regulations with a practical, goal-oriented compliance process.
