Company: TEKsystems
Position: Workstation Support Technician
Location: Atlanta, GA 30301
Posted: 1/25/23
End Date: Until Filled
Job Description: We are looking for someone to join our Client's Office IT team. Someone with knowledge in all things PC, Office 365, and more. The primary role of this position is to provide support to employees and contractors of our client. This support can range from resolving PC and conference room issues to installing new hardware to developing scripts for O365. This role does require occasional after-hours or on-call support.

While support is the primary role, there are a lot of projects to be worked on. Many already in the works, and many waiting to be discovered and started. You need to be a good communicator and a self-starter with the drive to keep on task, finding and resolving issues, and working on projects. This role covers so many different branches of technology, with some of them being extremely new, that you should always be looking for ways to improve things that are already in place. Or look for new things to add to the environment to make it better. There is a lot of room for improvement and changes to make the environment more innovative and stable.
